16 August _____ (year)

It is the first day in Beijing. We are going to stay with Uncle Weiming's family for two weeks, and we are going to return to Garden City on 29 August. In the following two weeks, Lucy and Simon will show us around Beijing.

We are going to visit the Palace Museum on 18 August. We can learn about the history of China there. We are going to visit the Summer Palace on 21 August. We can see a lot of old buildings and temples at the palace. On 24 August, we plan to watch the soldiers raising the Chinese national flag at Tian'anmen Square. We are going to visit the Great Wall on 26 August. We can see beautiful mountains from the wall.

I look forward to visiting these places. We will have a great time in Beijing.

Many, many years ago, dogs were already people's pets. They lived in caves with people. Dogs were very good helpers. They guarded the caves and kept people safe from danger.

Nowadays, dogs are also people's pets. But some people are unkind to their dogs. They do not look after them and leave them in the street. We should be kind to dogs. They are our friends. They can help us do many things. They help the police catch thieves and find missing people. They also help blind people cross the road safely.

- 1 Where did dogs live many, many years ago?

- 2 How did dogs help people many, many years ago?

Tom: Yes, they are. Can I pick one?
Jane: No, you can't. We must not pick the flowers in the park.

- 3 Bill: Oh, I can see a lot of people over there. What happened?
Tom: Let's go and have a look.
Jane: No. We must not walk on the grass in the park. Look at the sign. It says: Don't walk on the grass.
Tom: I'm sorry. I didn't see it.

- 4 Tom: Wow, what a big tree! I can climb onto the top.
Bill: Stop! Don't climb the tree.
Jane: Yes, here is another sign. It means: We must not climb the trees.
