前言

《高中英语》(上外版)配套练习部分是教科书的必要补充。它紧密围绕教材的有关内容,以新颖的题型、真实且贴合主题的素材、多样的练习和有趣且有意义的活动给同学们提供各种提高语言实践能力的机会。在使用练习部分之前,同学们要了解它的几个特点。

第一,结构严谨。练习部分对接教材中每单元的教学目标,将课堂教学与语言实践有效连接,形成闭环。教材中,每单元均会从语言能力、文化意识、思维品质和学习策略等方面向你们提出学习目标。同样,练习部分也紧紧围绕这些单元目标,将课堂教学中的内容迁移过来供大家巩固、提高并拓展。其中,教材中的 Discovering 对应练习部分中的 Grammar in Use 和 Vocabulary Focus; Understanding 对应 Listening and Viewing 和 Reading and Viewing; Producing 对应 Speaking 和 Writing; Extending 对应 Extended Reading 部分。在选择性必修中,练习部分还设置 Integrated Task 和 Long-term Project 等板块,通过综合项目、长周期项目等活动形式充分调动学习兴趣,培养实际运用语言的能力。

第二,设计新颖。练习部分兼顾题型的新颖性与素材的可读性。比如,在检测大家是否掌握核心词汇方面,我们引进了“猜词游戏”的题型;在语法环节,我们引进了“大家来找茬”的题型等。又如,在综合练习题中,我们不仅要求大家理解阅读素材的意义,还要基于这些材料来完成说和写的任务,让学和用完美结合。以必修第二册第四单元 Sports 为例,大家在写作练习中需要复听听力练习中的一则材料(有关 Wilma Rudolph 的励志故事),然后回答有关问题,再基于你们自己的作答,以 Wilma Rudolph 的视角来完成一篇发言稿,用于在电视节目中播出。

第三,内容丰富。练习部分在选材中兼顾素材的多样性和真实性。在多样性方面,选材要素包括连续性和非连续性文本、插图和漫画等。在真实性方面,部分听力材料选自真实的生活场景,并伴有真实的背景音效等。这些都让你们的练习中不仅感受到试题的趣味性,也增强了英语学习的有效性,不断提升大家进行课外自主学习的能力。

在此,我们也向同学们提出一些使用练习部分的建议。

第一,考虑到同学们对练习需求的差异,在不同板块中,我们均设计了基础级和提高级的试题。每单元还有拓展阅读训练,学有余力的同学可以将拓展的内容作为切入点,进一步开展探究式的学习。每本练习部分的最后还附有一套复习题,同学们可根据教师的指导认真完成。

第二,练习部分的编写宗旨是让同学们练习高质量的习题,避免陷入题海战术。因此,我们建议必修三册的单元练习总时长控制在 100—120 分钟,选择性必修四册的单元练习总时长控制在 110—140 分钟。同学们可根据教师的指导,在规定的时间内分批次认真完成。

第三,请大家留意练习部分每页都留有空间,这是供同学们做笔记使用的。大家不仅可以在教师讲评中记录要点,也可以将自学过程中查阅的单词含义和用法记录在这一区域,供日常翻阅和复习使用。

同学们,学习需要日积月累、持之以恒的努力。让我们用好配套练习内容,巩固教材中的知识,延伸教材中的内容,提升对教材中主题的理解。练习部分将伴随并见证大家在高中英语学习过程中的成长,你在其中收获的点点滴滴,汇聚在一起,也必定成为你今后语言实践能力和综合素养的重要组成部分。

☐ READ AND VIEWING

Section A Have you ever visited a national park? What are dos and don'ts of visiting a national park? Read the passage and complete the following tasks.

Staying Safe at Grand Canyon National Park Starts with YOU

View Grand Canyon Safely

Visitors are encouraged to have a safe and memorable vacation to one of the Seven Wonders of the World. A trip to Grand Canyon can be both fun and safe by keeping these few tips in mind.

- Always keep a safe distance of at least six feet (2 metres) from the edge of the rim (边沿).
- Keep an eye on all of the people in your group, especially small children.
- Do not run, jump or perform physical stunts (特技) when near the rim.

Protect Yourself

Arizona's dry climate may affect you differently than your home environment. To reduce the risk of sunburn, dehydration, and exhaustion:

- Use sunblock and reapply it throughout the day;
- Stay hydrated by drinking water or electrolyte (电解质) drinks;
- Rest often in the shade.

No Collecting

Grand Canyon National Park — a World Heritage Site — belongs to everyone. Please leave everything where you find it, including rocks, plants, firewood and artifacts.

Seeing Wildlife

Keep a long distance from wildlife to maintain the safety of you, your family, your pets and the wildlife you have come to appreciate.

How close is too close?

- Stay at least 100 feet (30 metres) or about two bus-lengths away from deer, bighorn sheep and mountain lions.
- Keep at least 50 feet (15 metres) or about one bus-length away from other smaller wildlife.
- Stay safe and never assume you are the one that can get away with a close encounter.

Can I feed the animals?

- Feeding animals is not allowed. This is for their safety as well as yours.
- Wildlife will quickly become persistent annoyances when fed.
- Make sure you get rid of your trash properly, even the smell in an empty cooler can attract a wild animal.

Task 1. Choose the best answer to each question.

- () 1. What are visitors advised to do while sightseeing at Grand Canyon?
- Protect themselves from sunburn.
 - Take the dead plants out of the park.
 - Guarantee the safety of children doing stunts.
 - Stay as far from the edge of the rim as possible.
- () 2. What does the word “dehydration” most probably mean?
- Feeling extremely tired and bored.
 - Being exposed too much to sunlight.
 - Losing too much water from the body.
 - Body temperature changing too greatly.

- () 3. Which of the following statements is TRUE about dealing with wildlife?
- A. Visitors are supposed to stay 100 feet away from wildlife.
 - B. Play with animals closely if you can ensure your own safety.
 - C. When wild animals approach, attract them with your food.
 - D. Feeding wild animals may get them to habitually beg for food.

Task 2. Apart from the advice in the passage, do you have your own suggestions or tips for national park visitors? Try to complete the following list.

Section B Going green has become a fashion in modern life. Read the passage about the philosophy on going green and complete it by using the sentences in the box below. Each sentence can be used only once. Note that there are two more sentences than you need.

- A. We are not trying to demonstrate an “ideal” green living that is achievable by only a few.
- B. But we were surrounded by the fears and doubts of all those who cared most about us.
- C. But we knew we wanted to create a “green” business and we had a willingness to learn.
- D. In doing so, we hope to raise awareness and inspire our guests to live a little more lightly on this planet.
- E. Green living is all about adopting more environmentally friendly practices.
- F. Eventually, the final goal is to be as green as possible.

Our Philosophy on Going Green

We are a young family with a growing concern for the environment and a strong desire to make a difference.

When we moved into our “off-the-grid” home on 31 May 2007, we had no previous exposure to living “off-the-grid” and no related education. (1) _____ It was a natural fit for us.

However, being “off-the-grid” is only the first step. Nature’s Harmony is in the early stages of a vision that is much bigger. Our goal is to live in a harmonious relationship with nature and to minimise our impact on the environment. (2) _____

Our “green” philosophy is all about taking the first step. (3) _____ However, if we only focus on the final goal, we would never take the first step because it is too big and too costly to achieve.

At Nature’s Harmony, we are laying a foundation and placing the building blocks — one by one — for greener living. It is a process, a series of steps and a lifelong commitment to learning and sharing. We are combining new technology with a back-to-basics philosophy.

There wouldn’t be much wisdom to share if we had millions of dollars to invest in going green. (4) _____ We are here to share the process.

We hope that our story will inspire others to take their first or next green steps.

SPEAKING

Section A Read aloud the following paragraphs.

What if an animal approaches me?

- Wildlife may not know better, but YOU do. Although it may feel flattering, if any kind of wildlife approaches you, back away and maintain that safe distance.
- It’s your responsibility and your safety — help us keep wildlife wild.

 Section B Make quick responses to the sentences you have heard.

Section B Below is a picture from Section A of Reading and Viewing. Write a description of the picture by using some signal words to indicate spatial order.

On the right side of the picture is _____

Extended Reading

Pre-reading questions:

1. Do you think there is a connection between giving women and girls more control over their life and stopping global warming?
2. How does that probably work?

How Giving Women and Girls More Control over Their Life Can Help to Stop Global Warming?

There are two powerful phenomena unfolding on earth: the rise of global warming and the rise of women and girls. The link between them is often overlooked, but gender equality is a key answer to our planetary challenge.

On the face of it, the primary link between women, girls and a warming world is not life but death. Climate impacts hit women and girls hardest. There is greater risk of being injured or killed during a natural disaster.

Actually, women are the primary farmers of the world. They produce 60 to 80 percent of food in lower-income countries, often operating on fewer than five acres. That's what the term "smallholder" means. Compared with men, women smallholders have less access to resources, including land rights, credit and capital, training, tools and technology. They farm as capably and efficiently as men, but this difference in resources and rights means women produce less food on the same amount of land. Close those gaps, and farm yields^① rise by 20 to 30 percent. That means 20 to 30 percent more food from the same garden or the same field. The implications for hunger, for health, for household income are obvious. Let's follow the thread to climate.

We humans need land to grow food. Unfortunately, forests are often cleared to supply it, and that causes emissions from deforestation^②. But if existing farms produce enough food, forests are less likely to be lost. So there's a ripple effect: support women smallholders, realise higher yields, avoid deforestation and sustain the life-giving power of forests. It is estimated that addressing inequality in agriculture could prevent two billion tons of emissions between now and 2050.

① n. the total amount of crops, profits, etc that are produced

② n. the act of cutting down or burning the trees in an area

At last count, 130 million girls are still denied their basic right to attend school. Too many girls are missing a vital foundation for life. Education can mean options, adaptability and strength. It can also mean lower emissions. For a variety of reasons, when we have more years of education, we typically choose to marry later and to have fewer children. So our families end up being smaller. What happens at the individual level adds up across the world and over time. One by one, the right to go to school impacts how many human beings live on this planet and impacts its living systems. Keeping the growth of our human population under control could dramatically reduce demand for food, transportation, electricity, buildings and all the rest, thereby reducing emissions. It is reported that one billion fewer people could mean we avoid nearly 120 billion tons of emissions. That's why girls should be educated.

It is a magnificent thing to be alive in a moment that matters so much. This earth, our home, is calling for us to be brave, reminding us we are all in this together — women, men, people of all gender identities, all beings. We are life force, one earth, one chance. Let's seize it.

Food for thought

Complete the chart based on what you have learned from the passage.

How does providing women and girls with education help to stop global warming?

Notes

Challenge

Read the passage again and summarise how education for women and girls helps to stop global warming in NO MORE THAN 60 WORDS.

Notes

UNIT 2

Animals

GRAMMAR IN USE

Section A Complete the sentences with appropriate relative adverbs or "preposition + which".

1. "Funny animal" is a term used in comics and cartoons _____ the animals are given human characteristics.

READING AND VIEWING

Section A Whales are widely distributed in the world. Have you ever learned about their stories? Read the passage and complete the tasks.

Whales are the largest marine mammals (哺乳动物) in the world. When whales beach themselves, they can die simply from the great weight of their own bodies or from overheating. What causes these often fatal incidents?

Scientists have been researching possible causes of this phenomenon. One explanation involves the whale social structure. For instance, when the dominant whale gets stuck, the rest may follow a disoriented or sick whale onto shore. Another theory is that whales may swim too close to the beach when hunting and become trapped by low tides.

Weather may also play a part in beachings, explained Susan Parks. "In 1998, there was a major stranding on the West Coast of the United States where many different species starved to death." This mass stranding, she added, was thought to be caused by El Nino's effects on sea-water surface temperatures. Many marine mammals depend on marine plants and animals that live in cool, nutrient-rich waters. When the temperature rises and food becomes scarce, the adults stop breastfeeding babies and start giving them solid food earlier and leave them behind while they hunt for fish in colder waters further offshore. These young ones are often the ones that become stranded.

Some researchers have proposed that whales navigate (确定方位) by using passive listening to hear waves crashing against the coast or steer themselves via undersea topography (地貌) or the angle of the sun. But, said Parks, "The distance that animals can see is often very limited in the ocean, and isn't thought to be useful for long-distance navigation."

Another navigation theory is that whales have a bio-magnetic sense. "This would be similar to how homing pigeons orient themselves," explained Parks. Whales following magnetic field lines could beach themselves in areas where the field lines meet with the coast. "A study in the UK found a relationship between local magnetic field lines and sites where whales were stranded alive," added Parks. However, more research is needed to prove the connection.

Research into the cause of strandings is ongoing, noted Parks. Meanwhile, many coastal areas have rescue groups to find and release them back into the wild.

Task 1. Choose the best answer to each question.

- () 1. In what condition are whale beachings less likely to occur?
- A. Whales adventure into shallow waters for food.
 - B. Baby whales stay in cold waters with their parents.
 - C. The leading whale gets confused about directions.
 - D. There is a food shortage caused by rising temperatures.
- () 2. According to the study in the UK, which of the following is found to be related to whale beaching?
- A. Complex undersea topography.
 - B. Magnetic field lines in the ocean.
 - C. Whales' long-distance navigation.
 - D. Whales' following homing pigeons.
- () 3. What is the main purpose of this passage?
- A. To arouse public concern about whale beaching.
 - B. To introduce different theories about whale beaching.
 - C. To argue against certain theories about whale beaching.
 - D. To inform readers of the ongoing rescue of beached whales.

Task 2. Answer the following questions.

1. What are some other threats faced by whales? Do some library work with your classmates and complete the list with as many items as you can find.

Some other threats to whales:

➤ being caught in fishing nets by commercial fisheries

5. 那位科学家认为，地球不可能是唯一适合生命繁衍的行星。(multiply, where)

Section B Read the paragraph in Section B of Vocabulary Focus again. Write a follow-up paragraph in 70–90 words about the concerns that biological oceanographers have about emperor penguins in the artificial world like the aquarium. Use cohesive devices where necessary. The following information is for your reference.

- 1) Emperor penguins inhabit only the Antarctic continent. Their habitat is exclusively massive icebergs, ice cliffs and cold seas.
- 2) Emperor penguins are real athletes. They can swim at the same speed day and night, dive to a depth of 1,800 feet and stay submerged (在水中的) for up to 18 minutes.
- 3) Emperor penguins are best known for the journeys that adult penguins make each year in order to mate and to feed their babies. Thousands of individuals go on a long journey of 50–120km over the ice to breeding areas.

Pre-reading questions:

In this unit, we've learned some advantages for keeping endangered animals in zoos. But are there any disadvantages you can think of? Read the passage to find out.

How Animal Rights Activists View Zoos Keeping Endangered Species?

According to the Endangered Species Act, the definition of an endangered species is "any species which is in danger of extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range." Zoos are widely regarded as guardians of endangered species, so why do animal rights activists claim the zoos are abusive^① and cruel?

① adj. (of behaviour) involving violence

Endangered Species and Animal Rights

Endangered species are an environmental issue, but not necessarily an animal rights issue. From an environmental perspective, a blue whale is more deserving of protection than a cow because blue whales are endangered and the loss of a single blue whale may impact the survivability of the species. The ecosystem is a network of interdependent species, and when a species becomes extinct, the loss of that species in the ecosystem could threaten other species. But from an animal rights standpoint, a blue whale is no more or less deserving of life and liberty than a cow because both are sentient^② individuals. Blue whales should be protected because they are sentient beings, and not just because the species is endangered.

② adj. able to see or feel things through the senses

Animal Rights Activists Oppose Keeping Endangered Species in Zoos

Keeping endangered animals in zoos violates^③ those individuals' rights to freedom. Violating the rights of individuals is wrong because a species is not an existence with its own rights. Additionally, removing breeding individuals from the wild population further endangers the wild population.

③ v. to disturb or not respect somebody's peace, privacy, etc

Notes

Zoo Breeding^④ Programmes

Even if a zoo operates a breeding programme for an endangered species, those programmes do not excuse violating the rights of the individual animals to be free. The individual animals are suffering in captivity^⑤ for the good of the species — but a species is not an existence which suffers or has rights.

Zoo breeding programmes produce the many baby animals that attract the public, but this leads to surplus animals. Contrary to popular belief, the vast majority of zoo breeding programmes do not release individuals back into the wild. Instead, the individuals are destined^⑥ to live their lives in captivity.

Zoo Breeding Programmes and Loss of Wild Habitat

Many species are endangered because of loss of habitat. As human beings continue to multiply, and urban communities continue to expand, we destroy wild habitat. Many environmentalists and animal advocates believe that habitat protection is the best way to protect endangered species.

If a zoo operates a breeding programme for an endangered species while there is insufficient habitat for that species in the wild, there is no hope that releasing individuals will add to the wild population.

Zoos vs. Extinction

Extinction is a tragedy. It is a tragedy from an environmental standpoint because other species may suffer and because it may indicate an environmental problem such as loss of wild habitat or climate change. It is also a tragedy from an animal rights standpoint because it means that sentient individuals probably suffered and died untimely^⑦ deaths.

However, from an animal rights standpoint, extinction in the wild is not an excuse to continue keeping individuals in captivity. As explained above, the survival of the species does not justify the loss of freedom for the individuals in captivity.

④ v. to keep animals or plants in order to produce young ones in a controlled way

⑤ n. the state of being kept as a prisoner or in a confined space

⑥ adj. having a future which has been decided or planned at an earlier time, especially by fate

⑦ adj. happening too soon or sooner than is normal or expected

Food for thought

1. According to the author, how do animal rights activists view zoos keeping endangered species?

2. “How do animal rights activists argue against zoos keeping endangered animals?” Answer the question in your own words, and find out no less than three arguments according to the passage. An argument is given as an example.

Animal rights activists view endangered species as an environmental issue rather than an animal rights issue, thus believing endangered animals are not more worth protecting than other animal species.

READING AND VIEWING

Section A Read the passage and complete the tasks.

Task 1. Think about the questions before reading.

1. What is good dining etiquette (礼仪) in China?
2. What should we pay special attention to when dining with businesspeople?

Good Dining Etiquette

Good dining etiquette in Germany and Europe is not very different from that in the U.S., but there are a few variations that you should know about.

Dining with Friends: A Gift Is Nice

As in the U.S., if you have been invited to dinner at someone's home, it is appropriate to bring a gift for your hosts. If you have brought along something typically American from your home state or city, that would be nice. Typical gifts include wine, flowers (no red roses, a sign of romance) or sweets. The better you know your hosts, the better you can select a gift.

Business Dining

If you are attending a business luncheon or dinner, the rules are much the same as in the U.S., but remember not to fall into American first-name familiarity. In Germany, business is business — even when dining. Shake hands (firmly) when greeting people! Look people in the eye. Wait for your host to indicate where you should sit.

Utensils

You certainly may continue to hold your eating utensils the American way, but Europeans find the American way of eating rather inefficient. They find all that switching hands and picking up and putting down the knife a bit too complicated. Here's the German/European way of using a knife and fork:

1. Hold the fork in your left hand, and the knife in your right hand.
2. Keep both in your hands while eating. Don't put the knife or fork down except to drink or pick up bread.
3. Do not cut up an entire piece of meat at once. Cut off a bite-size piece and eat it before you cut off another piece.

Finger Foods? Nein!

Germans and other Europeans rarely eat with their hands! Especially in a fine restaurant or in a formal dining situation, even pizza is eaten with a knife and fork. However, if you are at an outdoor party or eating informally, it's okay to eat some foods, such as hamburgers or hotdogs, with your hands.

Task 2. Complete the following table about German dining etiquette.

German Dining Etiquette

	Do's	Don'ts

Finger Foods	(6) _____ _____	Don't eat with hands in formal or semiformal dining situations.

Section B Do you still remember your favourite snacks in your childhood? Is there any link between food and family? Read the passage and choose the best word or phrase for each blank.

People associate food with family relationships. Debra Lupton, an Australian researcher, found that childhood memories of food were related to (1) _____ relationships rather than to foods themselves. When requested to write about "food", participants in Lupton's study described (2) _____ themes related to belongingness, happiness and disappointment. Food does much more than meet family members' (3) _____ needs. Eating together provides opportunities for family members to share the same event and eat similar foods. While family members' interests and activities may vary widely, mealtime provides a common (4) _____.

Attention to the (5) _____ of family meals is not new. In 1943 James H. S. Bossard indicated that the family meal "holds members of the family together". During mealtimes, Bossard noted, family members (6) _____, enlarging vocabulary, providing information and developing personality. He also acknowledged that because family meals represent "families in action", negative as well as positive interactivities occur during meals. (7) _____, Lupton noted that the family meal itself is not necessarily positive. When family members cooperate and are valued, the family meal helps to establish a sense of security among family members.

Family mealtimes may be a higher priority for some families than for others, and a possible decline in the (8) _____ of family meals is a commonly expressed concern. Social problems, ranging from failure in school to teenage emotional problems, have been leading to the decline in family meals. (9) _____, a decline in family meals may not be as extensive as feared. An American Dietetic Association fact sheet indicates that the average family prepares and eats dinner together five nights a week. Obviously, many people are (10) _____ obtaining the benefits of a family meal.

Extended Reading

Pre-reading question:

Comfort food provides an emotional value to us. It may be specific to an individual, or it may apply to a specific culture. What is your favourite comfort food? Describe it as vividly as you can.

TOP 4 COMFORT FOODS — WELLINGTON

Although Wellington has perfect weather most of the time, sometimes our mood can be challenged by occasional rain and light winds in the winter; in these instances I look to food and friends to lift my spirits. Feeling good in the cold seasons is easy if you fill your belly with food that reminds you of all the things that make you happy. So grab your mates and try these four offerings.

DRAGONS

YUM CHA DUMPLINGS

If there is any food that is always a comfort for your body, it has to be dumplings; these magical treats are perhaps the universe's perfect breakfast, lunch and/or dinner food.

Dragons is widely recognised in Wellington and they beat their peers with quality and service. Under the watchful eye of Eric Kong (assistant CEO) steamed goodies^① on trollies are pushed around by waiters wearing Madonna-like head microphone making sure that everyone orders far too much. My favourites are the pork, ginger and prawn steamed dumplings; the wrappers are steamed to breaking point but not beyond and the interiors^② are piping hot. Once you dip these little ones in the chili oil-soy sauce, any overindulgences^③ from Friday night will wash away.

CAPITOL

GRILLED WAGYU BEEFSTEAK & RIPPED CHIPS

Steak frites is my death-row meal and I find it very difficult not to order it when I see it on a menu. Capitol is almost 20 years old and Kate and Tom Hutchison run this incredible^④ restaurant. This steak is cooked to perfection, the ruby red centre with a good char^⑤ on the perimeter ensures every mouthful is perfect. Then there's the ripped chips. Everyone has opinions on what chips go best with steak, but studies show that ripped chips give you 50,000% more surface area and I'm glad Tom believes in the science as these are the best — crispy^⑥ on the outer and soft in the middle. This is like being fed by your parents when you need to feel the love of home and familiarity.

FIELD & GREEN

FISH FINGER SANDWICH & BACON SANDWICH

Wellington's best sandwiches are nostalgic^⑦, familiar and magnificent. Served by the ever-smiling and massively talented Laura Greenfield, my

① n. a thing that is very nice to eat

② n. the inside part of sth

③ n. having too much of sth nice, especially food or drink

④ adj. (informal) extremely good or extremely large

⑤ n. becoming black by burning

⑥ adj. (of food) pleasantly hard and dry

⑦ adj. having or bringing a feeling of sadness mixed with pleasure and affection when you think of happy times in the past

⑧ v. to put your arms around sb as a sign of love or friendship

fish and sharp tartar sauce is sandwiched by the softest house-made white bread ever and is consumed in minutes. While one sandwich is plenty, my appetite turns to sandwich course two and I have zero regrets about this decision. The perfect bread now embraces^⑧ crispy bacon with ample HP sauce to provide sweetness and extra depth of flavour. This is knocking my death-row meal into second place.

BURGER LIQUOR THE SMOKEY BURGER

Wellingtonians love their burgers. The greedy buggers consume about 200,000 in August alone but during the rest of the year Burger Liquor is rolling out the best in the city and it needs to be talked about. Its stalwart burger

"The Smokey" is a juicy, sweet, salty meat bomb that delivers world peace to your hungry stomach. Double-smoked patties, bacon, crispy onion strings and some sort of yellow cheese combine to let you know all is going to be OK with whatever has you upset. All of this is no surprise as Burger Liquor's smiling owner Dan Haycock has been officially named the nicest guy in the world for several years running now.

Food for thought

If you've got a chance to try one of the four comfort foods for free, which one would you like? Why?

Notes

Challenge

1. In what aspects are these comfort foods introduced?

READING AND VIEWING

Section A Read the passage and complete the tasks.

Task 1. Think about the questions before reading.

1. Have you or your friends ever tried long-distance running or even marathon?
2. In your opinion, why are some people crazy about marathons?

Task 2. Choose the most suitable heading from A–E for each numbered paragraph. There is one extra heading which you do not need.

- A. Running has given me confidence.
- B. I felt my body and head both challenged by running.
- C. Running has become part of my life.
- D. People think I've run all my life, which isn't true.
- E. To have completed the Marathon des Sables was incredibly empowering.

Sophie Raworth is a BBC newsreader and presenter, and somehow manages to find time to be a long-distance runner at the same time. She has completed numerous long-distance events, including all six World Marathon Majors and in 2018, the Marathon des Sables, a 156-mile ultramarathon across the Sahara.

Here is what she says when interviewed by Women's Running USA 2018.

(1) _____ I did a year of track running when I was 16. I was quite fast at the 400-metre race but stopped and began training with the British diving team. I didn't run again until I was in my 30s, but I hated it and quit. When I was presenting the six o'clock news, I trained for the Great North Run, which I took seriously and followed a plan. But it wasn't until 2011 that I started running in earnest and began training for my first London Marathon.

(2) _____ If I can't fit a run around my work hours, then I'll just run the 10 kilometres to work instead of taking the subway. I run five days a week. I have an online coach: he tells me what to do and I just do it.

(3) _____ I realised that your body can do so much more than you ever thought it could. So, much of running and life in general is about what's in your head. It's often your head that holds you back, rather than your body. This was a really important lesson for me in what you can do if you keep putting one foot in front of the other.

(4) _____ It has made me feel physically and mentally strong. I've just turned 50 and I'm fitter and faster than I've ever been. It's become a really stabilising part of my life. If I'm feeling tired or stressed, then I just go for a run. I work in a high pressure "live" environment, and I love the fact that I can get out in the countryside and run for hours on my own. I just listen to my thoughts, my feet and my breathing.

Everyone asks me what my next goal is. I have my eye on a big multi-stage race in the near future. I'd like to do more trail running and a stage of the Ultra Trail Mont Blanc. I also have my eye set on a marathon PB (personal best). My current PB is 3 hours 29 minutes and 15 seconds. I want to train really hard and see if I can beat it.

Task 3. What might Sophie Raworth want to tell us next? Can you make a prediction?

My prediction:

Section B Apart from keeping fit, what does sport mean to teenagers? Read the passage and complete it by using the sentences in the box below. Each sentence can be used only once. Note that there are two more sentences than you need.

- A. Getting your teens into a sport gives them an opportunity to go out and socialise.
- B. Recent studies show that obesity is rapidly becoming a major issue within society and its teenagers.
- C. A great way to do this is by showing up to their games, helping them to practise, and helping with team fundraisers.
- D. While this may seem like a silly reason, there are lots of other benefits of sports that your teens may overlook.
- E. If you do a little research, you're sure to find the sport your teens will enjoy.
- F. Joining a team sport will help your teens to get out and get some exercise without feeling pressured to lose weight or get in shape.

Why Is Sport Important for Teenagers?

A lot of teens in high school want to try out for sports. Many try because they think it will make them popular or get them more dates.

(1) _____ Here are some reasons that you'll find comforting.

With TV, movies, computers and video games becoming more and more popular, it has become so much easier for teens to be by themselves rather than going out with friends. Kids used to go hang out at the mall or drive around town; now they just sit at home. (2) _____ While they may not find a new best friend, they will learn how to interact and work as a team; something they'll find useful later in life.

One of the biggest problems in our society today is obesity (肥胖), and it's not just a problem with adults. More and more kids are becoming overweight. (3) _____ Plus, if your teens see that their physical condition is causing them to underperform, they may be motivated to do other activities to get healthy.

These days, it's becoming harder to show your teens that you love and support them. (4) _____ These are also great ways to spend time with your kids and talk to them.

Team sports are a great way for your teens to get out of the house, get moving, make friends, and even get a scholarship to college. So why not talk to them about getting into sports today?

I did a year of track running when I was 16. I was quite fast at the 400-metre race but stopped and began training with the British diving team. I didn't run again until I was in my 30s, but I hated it and quit. When I was presenting the six o'clock news, I trained for the Great North Run, which I took seriously and followed a plan. But it wasn't until 2011 that I started running in earnest and began training for my first London Marathon.

Section B Ask two questions about each situation given below. At least one special question should be asked about each situation.

Questions 1–2:

You missed a basketball match between Class 1 and Class 2 yesterday. Ask your classmate Jack, who was there, two questions about the details of the match.

Questions 3–4:

Your friend Sarah tells you that she signed up for a yoga course last week. Ask her two questions about the yoga course.

Section C Can you imagine what is described in the picture? Make a story based on it and begin your talk with the first sentence given.

Xiao Ming was trying to pass the physical fitness test.

Task 2. Suppose you were Wilma Rudolph, and were invited to deliver a speech about your major experiences on a TV show. Write your speech according to the timeline in Section B of Listening and Viewing and your answers to the questions in Task 1 above.

Ladies and gentlemen,

Pre-reading questions:

1. Do you have any idea of what running poles are?
2. Are they invaluable tools or dangerous weapons for runners in trail running? Why do you think so?

For and Against Running Poles — An Invaluable Tool or Dangerous Weapon?

FOR

British runner Damian Hall believes the boost^① provided by sticks makes them invaluable.

Hand-held sticks or poles have been used by skiers since the Middle Ages. In recent decades, hikers and runners have recognised their effectiveness and adopted them too, especially in Europe. In ultra-distance mountain races nowadays you might guess at least 75% of runners are using them, including the likes of Kilian Jornet and François D’Haene, Mimmi Kotka and Núria Picas — all UTMB winners.

A 2010 Northumbria University study showed poles reduce soreness after a hill walk and help to maintain muscle function, provide “motivation to enjoy the benefits of exercise for longer”, and avoid injury. Three US studies (from the Universities of Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Steadman-Hawkins Sports Medicine Foundation) found the same things: poles lead to less tiredness, less stress on the joints and fewer injuries.

You hear occasional complaints about popular races where pole use is sometimes unruly^② in crowded situations. But races such as Transgrancanaria ban their use for the first 2 kilometres, which does a lot to ease the situation.

To sum up, if poles are likely to make it less painful to go up and down mountains, and therefore mean that more people enjoy the great

① n. an act of pushing sb up from behind

② adj. difficult to control or manage outdoors, that must be a good thing.

AGAINST

American world mountain running champion Joseph Gray says poles are dangerous and speed up trail erosion^③.

About 1 kilometre into a race I almost got my eyes poked^④ out by a competitor using running poles. Although the trail was a little wider than single track, his poles were taking up the space that would typically allow one to pass without concern. I was forced to pass off-trail to avoid being tripped^⑤ by the poles.

I began spending time watching groups of hikers attached to poles on trails across the globe. I realised my story wasn't isolated. I saw numerous people being tripped by the poles of passing hikers and plenty of trekkers^⑥ poked by pole tips. Even worse, the poles were digging into the terrain^⑦, putting small holes into the earth with every step they took. I've noticed over the years that various trails I frequent have become noticeably more eroded, new rocks once beneath soil now resting their edges on exposed trail.

Is it time for us to ban the use of poles in public spaces? Definitely in races. They are dangerous to others around and, due to the fact that one must go wide to pass someone using poles, athletes are also forced to run off-trail, damaging new terrain and vegetation. We are already leaving our footprint on natural areas across the globe; do we need to speed up the process simply to allow someone to use an unnecessary piece of equipment to entertain themselves in the outdoors? Our ancestors climbed rugged^⑧ mountains without poles. And slowing down erosion of natural areas is more important than making it easier for someone to climb a mountain.

③ n. the process by which the surface of sth is gradually destroyed through the action of wind, rain, etc

④ v. to quickly push your finger or another object into sb/sth

⑤ v. to catch your foot on sth and fall or almost fall

⑥ n. a traveller who makes a long, hard walk lasting several days or weeks, especially in the mountains

⑦ n. an area of land when you are mentioning its natural features, for example, if it is rough, flat, etc

⑧ adj. not level or smooth and having rocks rather than plants or trees

Task 1. Read the passage and underline the phrases or sentences for or against running poles.

Task 2. Summarise the information you have underlined and complete the following table.

	For	Against
Main Arguments	Physical benefits: 1. reduce soreness after a hill walk and help to maintain muscle function 2. lead to _____ _____ _____ 3. make it less painful to _____ _____ _____ Mental benefits: 1. provide motivation to enjoy the benefits of exercise for longer 2. enable more people to _____ _____ _____	For passing hikers: Poles are dangerous because _____ _____ _____. For trails: Poles can dig into _____ _____ _____ and put _____ _____ _____, thus speeding up trail erosion.
Methods of Argumentation	1. by quoting data 2. by _____ _____ 3. by _____ _____	1. by _____ _____ 2. by reasoning

Challenge

Conduct a debate with your classmates on the pros and cons of using running poles. Remember to select useful information from the table of Task 2, and apply appropriate speaking strategies.

GRAMMAR

Read the passage and fill in the blanks to make it coherent and grammatically correct. For the blanks with a given word, fill in each blank with the proper form of the given word; for the other blanks, use one word that best fits each blank.

King of the Jungle

Lions are the second largest living cat species after the tiger. Their fierce roar, supernatural strength and attractive manes (鬃毛) make them one of (1) _____ (respectable) animals of the animal kingdom. A lion's roar can be heard from five miles away and it can run up to a speed of 81 kph. However, (2) _____ lack of endurance, they can do this in small intervals only. A few centuries ago, lions wandered in different parts of the world. Sadly, today their habitat range (3) _____ (reduce) tremendously. Let's read further to find out the habitat (4) _____ the lion prefers to live!

(5) _____ the lion is known as the "King of the Jungle", it does not actually live in the jungle! The movie "The Lion King", originally (6) _____ (title) "King of the Jungle", was changed by Disney when they realised that. Lions prefer to live near rivers because rivers supply them with constant water. The water also attracts their prey (猎物), thereby (7) _____ (increase) prey density in the area. As far as lions are concerned, they are social cats and live in prides (packs of 15–40 lions). Each pride has 1–4 dominant male lions (8) _____ (lead) it, and several lionesses and cubs (幼兽). The lionesses carry out majority of the hunting, but the lions feed first, (9) _____ (follow) by the lionesses, and lastly the cubs. The males are extremely possessive of their territory and will even hunt those (10) _____ threaten their prides. Thus, the habitat of a lion is also a place that satisfies a lion's physical, mental and emotional needs.

VOCABULARY

Section A Complete the sentences with the words in the box. Each word can be used only once. Note that there is one word more than you need.

appreciate delicate draw grab turn ultimate

4. With different dining customs, some foreigners are unable to _____ traditional Chinese snacks.

5. Nowadays, many people are so busy that they always pop into one convenience store to _____ a meal on their way to the office or home.

Section B Complete the passage with proper forms of the antonyms of the underlined words. In some blanks, you may use prefixes (in-, im-, un-, etc).

Species in tropical rain forests have developed a tendency to simplification, or a decrease in (6) _____ of species. The balance of nature is to be lost. Scientists are concerned that such (7) _____ may result in desertification. This is partly because of the effect of introducing foreign creatures on the (8) _____ environment. Besides, some woodcutters cut down trees without legal permission. It's only a matter of time before their (9) _____ activities eventually revenge on mankind. Therefore, every man should take the responsibility to protect nature instead of (10) _____ it.

READING

Section A Read the passage and choose the best word or phrase for each blank.

Parents have an impact on what their children eat and how much they eat. To develop familiarity with and preference for specific food items, children may need to be (1) _____ to that food ten times. Parents have the responsibility of selecting much of the food eaten by very young children. But children also affect the food behaviours of other family members by (2) _____ what is purchased and prepared. Parents want to serve food that their children will eat. According to Gill Valentine, a professor of the University of Sheffield, "The power of children shapes the (3) _____ practices of a household."

Parents and children not only impact one another's food choices. The care and love parents demonstrate by purchasing or preparing food for their children is evident; (4) _____, children use food to express care and helpfulness to parents. In interviews conducted in California, adolescents between the ages of eleven and fourteen reported cooking for themselves or siblings (兄弟姐妹). They viewed preparing food at home as (5) _____ family life. Thus, children and parents alike help to create a sense of family by giving and receiving care demonstrated through food.

The adolescents interviewed by Elaine Bell Kaplan, an associate professor of the University of Southern California, indicated that the boys described enjoying cooking as much as the girls did. Boys' enjoyment of cooking follows a trend in which men (6) _____ contribute to preparation of family meals. Women still do most of the cooking for families, but men often participate in food preparation. These couples viewed food preparation as part of the (7) _____ of labour, which they had negotiated, rather than as the duty of the female.

Food preferences and preparation responsibilities are negotiated between husband and wife, as well as between parents and children. People also negotiate and renegotiate food patterns throughout the (8) _____ of their own lives. Researchers in Scotland examined (9) _____ in eating habits when couples began to live together. Before they got married, people shopped for food when they felt like it or needed more food; when they began living together, both meals and shopping became more (10) _____.

Section B Read the passage which is followed by several questions or unfinished statements. For each of the question or statement, there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. Choose the one most appropriate answer for each.

① The desire to journey through the great outdoors is in your DNA. We humans were born to move. Hiking helps your heart, builds balance and maximises memory. And, most importantly, it's great fun. When you hit the trail (出发) with friends, you're so immersed (沉浸在) in great conversation and the magic of nature. That makes it a complete mind, body and spirit workout like no other. Plus, hiking adventures provide the perfect goal to give you a reason to train, and that motivates you to move. Even better if you're doing it for a purpose, such as for charity — it means you're less likely to quit because someone else is relying on you!

② If you don't know where to start, here's what you need to do to get ready for your first adventure.

PLAN FOR IT

③ Start with your goal and work backwards. Plan your monthly, weekly and daily training. And don't forget to add on a couple of yoga, swimming, cycling or dance sessions to balance out the work. Habitual training will make all the difference to your big goal by setting up your mind and body for success.

START THE WORKOUT

④ It's important to replicate the exact activity you're training for. If you're planning to climb a mountain, hike hills and stairs. If you're planning a 60-kilometre trek (长途跋涉), do distance hiking. The most effective way to train is a combination of cardio (有氧运动), strength, moderate-intensity training, endurance and flexibility. To get stronger and get used to walking with some weight, fill up your backpack.

KEEP IT SAFE

⑤ Unlike many higher-intensity forms of exercise, hiking injuries are rare, because you're using your body naturally. To prevent sore knees, build up gradually, and if your knees start to give you trouble, seek immediate advice from an exercise physiologist. Listen to your body: if it hurts, don't do it. And remember, your body heals best with eight hours of sleep. Don't forget to stretch before, during and after your hike. It'll go a long way towards preparing your body for the big challenge ahead.

- () 11. According to paragraph 1, which of the following factors engages one in hiking?
- A. Urge of helping those in need.
 - B. Knowledge of making adventures.
 - C. Independence of outdoor activities.
 - D. Chances of cutting in conversations.
- () 12. The word "replicate" in paragraph 4 is closest in meaning to _____.
- A. undertake B. prevent C. copy D. record
- () 13. Which of the following is TRUE about hiking according to the passage?
- A. Weight training can help hikers to keep body balance.
 - B. High-intensity hiking helps one to recover from sore knees.
 - C. Sufficient stretching and sleep can prevent injuries in hiking.
 - D. We'd better break down final goals and plan a mixed training.

Section C Read the passage. Fill in each blank with a proper sentence given in the box. Each sentence can be used only once. Note that there are two sentences more than you need.

- A. The first thing especially kids ask is whether they can have this as a pet.
- B. Without going to great effort it is not practical to house an adult African tortoise indoors.
- C. The zoo will get called about animals that people no longer want, but they do not have the room for every animal.
- D. People should understand the animal and what requirements it has before adopting or purchasing a pet.
- E. The discovery got us to look into the importance of animal care and make responsible choices when choosing a pet.
- F. He has joined the zoo's ambassador programme, which brings smaller animals out into the community for education.

Abandoned Tortoise Turned Animal Ambassador at a Zoo

The Roosevelt Park Zoo has a new addition, Wilson the Tortoise, thanks to the good eye of a fisherman. "He was floating on a log. Being a tortoise, he is a terrestrial (陆栖的) animal. So the fisherman turned him over to Fish and Game. Fish and Game then contacted us to see if we could have a home for him here at our zoo," said Nicole Barnhart, the Zoo educator.

Wilson is actually an African tortoise found in Lake Sakakawea, North Dakota, USA. (14) _____

Wilson is the most recent example of an animal with this story. (15) _____

"They get to reach people who may not normally get a chance to come to the zoo. And it really allows people a chance to get to learn about these animals, see them up close," said Nicole Barnhart.

Visiting schools and nursing homes allows the zoo to educate people on the importance of being a responsible pet owner. "(16) _____ Because now they are super excited and find them lovable," said Barnhart.

Although, as Barnhart says they are cute, not all of these animals are your domestic dog or cat. "For example, people commonly think that reptiles (爬行动物) are easy to maintain because they don't need to get fed every day. But those animals take special light and heat sources. So getting all of that set up in a tank can be quite a demanding task," said Barnhart.

Barnhart says through the animal ambassador programme that the zoo is following their mission of promoting wildlife understanding and conservation through public education. (17) _____ This is why they want to stress the importance about being a responsible pet owner.

 WRITING

Section A Translate the sentences into English, using the words given in the brackets.

SPEAKING

Section A Read aloud the following paragraph.

Soccer is popular for all of the reasons, but ultimately, the main reason for its universal appeal may be this: it's a simple game. It can be played anywhere with anything — a ball, a can, or even some bags tied together. And anyone can play it. "You don't need to be rich... to play soccer," says historian Peter Hanks. "You just need a flat space and a ball." It is this unique simplicity that makes soccer the most popular sport in Africa. Here, even in rural areas far from the bright lights and big stadiums, children and adults play the game, often with handmade balls.

Section B Ask two questions about each situation given below. At least one special question should be asked about each situation.

Questions 1–2:

Your friend Mary, who is an Australian, is going to visit you this summer vacation. You are arranging food and accommodation for her. Ask Mary two questions about her preferences.

Questions 3–4:

Your friend Xiao Zhang is a member of the school tennis club. You are also interested in the club. Ask him two questions about the details of joining the school tennis club.

 Section C Make quick responses to the sentences you have heard.

1. Your response:
2. Your response:
3. Your response:
4. Your response:

Section D You will have one minute to prepare and another minute to talk in at least five sentences about the picture. Begin your talk with the first sentence given.

Xiao Ming and Xiao Li were having a picnic on the grass.
